- Smoother transitions overall
- If there's more content for the user to scroll down and see, the navbar should shrink slightly to "open up" the screen more
- All images should be bordered by the olive green or sky blue accent colors and captions underneath them should be italicized or styled in a different manner from the main text
- In the home page, the hero image can be dimmed so "What are Spaghetti Westerns?" can be seen more clearly
- In the Filmmakers and Actors section, Sergio Leone's section gets the olive green border color while Sergio Corbucci's section should have the sky blue border colors.
- For pages with a lot of text like Artistic Choices and Global Impact, important names and titles should be bold or italicized to give them emphasis
- On the Global Impact page, the captions underneath the images should be closer to the images
